

Jamie-Rae Olivia Corbishley

Our beautiful little princess was born October 16th 2007. She was born suddenly and unexpectedly at home, needing to be delivered by her daddy whilst the paramedics were still on their way. We knew she was going to be special from that moment on.

She was born happy, healthy and had a beauty that no words could give justice. As she grew and as we saw her first smiles and giggles - we couldn't wait to see more of her firsts. She loved being cuddled and talked to (and tried to talk back in her own special way), she loved to stare at lights and watch the washing machine, but best of all she loved her bath time. She loved to watch, and would sit as if taking the world in. I always wondered what she was thinking as her look was so wise!

Her first Christmas was one that we will never forget. She smiled constantly and loved helping daddy unwrap the presents - she found the noise hysterical and seemed to love every minute. We were so proud of our girl.

We sit here and think of how to describe her but we find it hard to explain just how perfect she was. Jamie-Rae had the sweetest smell, a little button nose, rosebud lips that when she smiled would make our world move, and the most amazingly big grey eyes. We had an amazing 3 months with her and had no idea there was anything wrong.

On January the 10th Jamie-Rae fell ill, and she was admitted to HDU at the Royal Berkshire Hospital., where she continued to baffle doctors. 3 days later she was put on a life support machine and was transferred to PICU at the John Radcliff hospital, where she fought so hard and had a strength that amazed us all. Jamie-Rae was finally diagnosed with LCHAD (Long-chain 3-Hydroxyacyl-coenzyme A Dehydrogenase deficiency) and was put on the medication and feed that could possibly help her. On her 8th day in hospital her condition had continued to deteriorate, and it was thought her best chance was to take her to GOSH. Our baby girl was too tired and her heart was just not strong enough to make the journey. Jamie-Rae fell asleep on the way there; she was 3months and 2days old.

Jamie-Rae had a rare love to give and managed to capture the hearts of everyone who met her. She has taught us all so much, and many lessons are yet undiscovered. She continues to astound us. This is why we want to start the Jamie-Rae galaxy tribute fund. We want to help raise as much awareness and funding to help others like us, and hopefully somewhere someday we can prevent such a precious loss happening again.

In memory of Jamie-Rae Olivia, so sweet, precious and amazing, our little angel, she is and always will be our perfect little princess

In our hearts forever, Mummy and Daddy xxxx
